HOME-MADE INGREDIENTS

To give our guests the best cocktail experience, we have made quite a few unique home-made ingredients that might be unfamiliar to you.

SHRUB

The word shrub is derived from the Arabic word sharab, which means "to drink." These syrups, common in colonial America, were used to make delightful drinks. Cocktail shrubs combine water, fruit, sugar and vinegar to create an acidic syrup that adds depth and complexity when mixed into a cocktail. They were initially used to help preserve fruit back in the days when refrigeration was not available. They are used in small quantities in some of our cocktails to give a fruity, sweet & acidic balance.

SHERBET

This mixer is a combination of fresh lemon juice and oleo saccharum. Oleo saccharum is Latin for "oil-sugar" and is the name given to the syrup by using sugar's absorption properties to extract the natural oils from citrus fruits and mixing it with the fresh juice. This produces a much more fragrant and flavourful citrus that we use in our cocktails.

CELLULOUS

Cellulous is obtained from natural plant fibres. We use cellulous as a replacement for egg white that is used in classic cocktails. Cellulous is vegetarian and vegan friendly and does not flavour or aroma, but just add texture and a silky mouthfeel to our cocktails.

Navigate your way around our signature resort serve of Absolut Mandarin vodka, Archers peach, fresh lemon, homemade champagne syrup, blue curaçao & cellulous served with a shot of bubbles on the side

Kurumba Paradise 21

REFRESHING – COMPLEX - FLUFFY

“Kurumba” actually means “young coconut” (the green kind that you get coconut water from) in Dhivehi. We use fresh Kurumba water shaken with homemade lemongrass infused Beefeater Gin, fresh passionfruit, apple, honey & lime, served with a Kurumba cardamom foam dusted with toasted coconut shavings

Spiced Peach Julep 21

STRONG – SPICY - AROMATIC

The classic Julep cocktail is a signature cocktail of the Kentucky Derby. It is a horse race held annually in Louisville, Kentucky, United States, almost always on the first Saturday in May, capping the two-week-long Kentucky Derby Festival. Our variation combines premium Makers Mark Bourbon, fresh mint, mango reduction, peach puree served over crushed ice in a classic Julep Cup

Smoked Popcorn Old Fashioned 25

FUKUYA TEPPANYAKI DRINKS MENU

SPECIALTY COCKTAILS

The national beverage of Japan, sake is a fermented rice beverage (typically referred to as a rice wine) that has been enjoyed since at least the 8th century. All our Sake based cocktails are the perfect accompaniment to your sushi

Fukuya Martini 18

STRONG – FLORAL – SMOOTH

Our own take on the classic Sake Martini but a little easier on the pallet. Japanese House Sake, Russian Standard vodka & elderflower stirred with a hint of fresh cucumber and served with a twist of lemon

Kofuku 18

LIGHT – SMOOTH – FRAGRANT

Kofuku is Japanese for happiness. That's all you will feel after enjoying this combination of Japanese House Sake, strong brewed green tea, Midori melon liqueur, lime, sugar, bitters & cellulose shaken and served with thai basil

Sake Cho 18

LIGHT – FRUITY - COLOURFUL

Japanese House Sake, peach puree, lemon sherbet shaken well and topped off with a healthy measure of butterfly pea tea infused Beefeater Gin layered on top

HOME-MADE INGREDIENTS

To give our guests the best cocktail experience, we have made quite a few unique home-made ingredients that might be unfamiliar to you.

SHRUB

The word shrub is derived from the Arabic word sharab, which means "to drink." These syrups, common in colonial America, were used to make delightful drinks. Cocktail shrubs combine water, fruit, sugar and vinegar to create an acidic syrup that adds depth and complexity when mixed into a cocktail. They were initially used to help preserve fruit back in the days when refrigeration was not available. They are used in small quantities in some of our cocktails to give a fruity, sweet & acidic balance.

SHERBET

This mixer is a combination of fresh lemon juice and oleo saccharum. Oleo saccharum is Latin for "oil-sugar" and is the name given to the syrup by using sugar's absorption properties to extract the natural oils from citrus fruits and mixing it with the fresh juice. This produces a much more fragrant and flavourful citrus that we use in our cocktails.

CELLULOUS

Cellulose is obtained from natural plant fibres. We use cellulose as a replacement for egg white that is used in classic cocktails. Cellulose is vegetarian and vegan friendly and does not flavour or aroma, but just add texture and a silky mouthfeel to our cocktails.
